Choice Poetry.

For the Adams Sentinel
A Visit to Dreamland on New Year's Night.

"Two the night after New Year's, all was still in the house."
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse,
I had gone to my bed in the happiest mood,
Having just read in the paper some happy good,
In the midst of my dreams I saw this, I spread
With the latest of Turkey's from the foot to the head.

Intertwined with chickens and nests of hares,
The choice of peas, jelly, cakes and rich jams,
Was a perfect confusion of rich, sour and sweet,
Most temptingly luscious and ready to eat.

Which I thus in such rapture was eating my eyes,
I was startled, I thought, by most lifeless cries;
And out in the road there stood, such a cluster,
I wish to the door to see what was the matter.

What I wish to my wondering eyes should appear,
But the ghosts of all Turkey's came down on New Year's.

An army of millions was marching along,
In a quivering and quivering tumultuous throng;
There were some that had heads, and some that had none,
A host without feathers while the wings were both gone.

Such a motley, confused and turbulent corps,
I never had seen, nor wish to see more.
Now they were all to the left, now they were charged to the right,
Upon each man in front it came within sight.

My blood then stood still, and my heart ceased to beat,
My body was powerless, and I found my feet;
In the midst of my horror I gave a wild scream,
Which roused the crowd from my terrible dream.

To learn that instead of the Turkey's shrill cry,
'Twas the rising bell telling that breakfast was nigh.

I sprang from my bed at the sound of the clatter,
Being fully aware now of what was the matter.
The wits of my dream, good or bad, or indifferent,
It was caused by the Turkey's late on New Year's.

GUARDIAN ANGELS.
If not each one who carries here
Some guardian in you upper sphere,
Some gentle one, some spirit bright,
To guard them in the path of light;
To save them from each danger nigh,
Cause sorrow from their hearts to fly.

To soothe us when our little friends would,
To shed their peaceful influence round;
To fill our hearts with words of thought,
And bless us with their love unthought.

Oh, tell me from that bright sphere
If you do not guard our little friends;
If you do not guard our little friends;
And make our troubled spirits calm,
Preserve us from temptation's power.

And guard, and watch us, every hour,
Till your great power shall win our power,
And guard us from each danger nigh,
And teach us through the good that's given
To turn our waiting hearts to Heaven.

Twilight Musings.
In the calm still hour of twilight, when
Each separate ember makes bright shadows on the wall, who does not love, while gazing on the burning cinders, to indulge in the retrospect of the past? Burn on, little fire, for as I look upon thee, I remember, when a little child, I used to sit upon my mother's knee, loving arms enfolding me; soft lips pressing kisses on my forehead, and hands (at now are mouldering into dust) smoothing the hair from off my brow, while softly, in sweet measured tones, she sang to me of that Heaven to which she since has gone; but here to night I could fancy myself a child again, cradled in the same embrace.

Other loves have come and blest me; God has been very good to my wayward child; but a mother's love my heart has cherished for; and never can the void be filled till her and I join hands in that blessed home where "God shall wipe away all tears from our eyes."

Many days have passed since then, but as I gaze upon the fire and think over the past, my heart should not be weary. Many read in this ember's sad story of young hopes—fond hearts perchance broken—but see places long since grown cold, and dare not listen to the voice which tenderly at twilight whispers, "I will come again."

God be with the heart-stricken ones; and when the longing comes for the absent focus that return not back again, the loving hearts we trusted so fondly, and willing hands to lead us on our way: then ask in faith that

"God's name be love, as we are told,
He will not leave us to unequal strife,
But to the city with the streets of gold,
Bring us, and give us, everlasting life."

Home.
Home, a place of rest, of security, within whose sacred precincts can any door not enter with its blighting breath; where loving hearts would find shield as from all temptation and danger without, and where for us the hallowed voice of prayer, like incense, ascendeth up to heaven. It is the place where the mind receives its first impressions—those that go with us through life, and shall be the last to fade—if fade they can—when evening shall gather round us, and the brow grow cold and pale with the chilling view of the dark valley.

Home should be a place where gentle words and loving deeds make the heart rejoice; where kind encouragement is given to the timid, words of cheer and comfort to the desponding, and of gentle reproof to the erring. Thus shall we find it what God designed—a substitute for our long lost Eden. We pity those who find it not such. God pity them!

A Quaker's Mistake.
A Quaker intending to drink a glass of water, took up a small tumbler of gin. He did not discover his mistake until he got behind the door and swallowed the dose, when he lifted both hands and exclaimed: "Verily, I have taken unwarily the balm of the world's people. What will Abigail say when she smells my breath?"

Our father Adam was the nest-dollar of the whole human cabinet of coins.

Novel Remedy.

A good story is told of a fellow who put up at an Indian Cabin on the Wabash, and who, after eating an enormous supper of cucumbers, was attacked by the cholera. The woman of the house, upon being consulted, said:

"I'll go and fetch mother; 'cause, stranger, I do reckon she be the awfulest best hand for curin' colic in the whole Wabash bottom."

She went into another part of the house, and ten minutes after one of the ugliest, sallowest, liveliest old women I ever saw in any part of the civilized world, came hobbling in. Her gait was hardly a decent hobble; it was more like that of a rheumatic ostrich. Her nose and chin almost met over the sunken cheek doing duty as a mouth, and as she shuffled toward me she mumbled as if chewing the cud. On the end of her nose was a great wart, with four or five great bistles straggling from it.

"Stranger," says she, "Betsey Jane tells me she reckons you've got the colic powerful now, I've bin so myself nigh a hundred times, I reckon, in the cucumber season; and Betsey Jane she's bin that way; Richard he's bin that way, and the biggest end of the rest of the family." Profoundly a musket ball—an ounce bullet of lead—she assured me that I would be all right in five minutes after swallowing it; that lead was death on colics. Being terribly racked, and hardly knowing what I did, I seized the bullet, and with a single gulp, down it went. No sooner was it down than I repeated of having swallowed it. I remembered to have heard that lead was poisonous. Starting up, I cried out:

"You old wretch, you have killed me!—Lead is deadly poison. I can feel it cold in my stomach now. It will me!"

"Ha, ha, ha! he, he, he!" laughed the old crone; "he, he, he!" in a shrill, cracked voice—"kill yer! don't pastor yourself with the idea. Why, stranger, that bullet's bin in the family nigh onto twenty years.—Richard, he has swallowed it; the biggest end of the children, they've swallowed it; and I've swallowed it well nigh on to forty times."

"You?" I cried, starting from my seat; you've swallowed this same bullet?"

"Sartin! that same bullet every cucumber season for nigh twenty years."

"You old devil!" I cried, as I rushed from the house.

A Double Mistake.
While in winter quarters near Centerville, it came to pass that one of the drummers, who was on account of his conduct, not a particular favorite of Col. Seymour, the 6th Louisiana, best the wrong call. The "old man," who, from his long military career, was perfectly au fait in all matters of camp life, rushed out of his tent, and meeting what he supposed to be the rascally drummer, at once went to work to punish him; and having done so, he returned to his tent, where he found his orderly, Fred, a German youth, of quite genteel manners, sitting before the fire with a broad smile on his countenance, and evidently suppressing outright laughter—

"What is the matter with you, boy?" quickly inquired the Colonel, who was still excited from his corporal exercise.

After some hesitation and repeated questions of the colonel, he murmured in a low voice, "That was not the drummer you whipped; it was Sergeant—, of company E, who looks so much like him." The Colonel now became enraged at Fred for not apprising him of the mistake in time, and came very near chastising the Teutonic youth; but his good nature and heart soon asserted their sway, and forth he sallied from his tent in search of the injured individual, to make reparation. On turning the second avenue, he met the object of his search, grasped him by the hand, apologized in the most sincere manner, and the weather being cold invited him up to the tent and treated him to an apple toddy.

The appeased individual departed, and Fred was again seen smiling and sniggering at the fire.

This time the Colonel waxed decidedly warm, and demanded peremptorily to be informed of the cause of his unbecoming behavior and suspicious merriment, when Fred bursting out, said, "You treated the drummer to apple toddy, he looks so much like the sergeant of company F, you whipped a while ago." The sequel can easily be imagined. Fred got something, but it was not apple toddy.

A few days ago, a young schoolmistress was taking down the names and ages of her scholars, at the commencement of the term. She asked a little white-headed boy: "Bub, how old are you?" "My name ain't Bub, it's John." "Well," said the schoolmistress, "what is the rest of your name?" "Why, that's all the name I've got—just John." "Well, what is your father's name?" "You couldn't put pap's name down, he ain't come to school any; he's too big to go to school." "Well, how old are you?" "I ain't old at all, I'm young!"

"I don't miss my church so much as you suppose," said a lady to her minister who had called upon her during her illness, "for I make Betsey sit at the window as soon as the bell begins to chime, and tell me who are going to church, and whether they have got anything new."

A man cannot gulp down a quail or a robin whole, but he is not apt to choke from having ever so big a swallow in his throat.

Truth is naked, and like our first parents before their fall, not ashamed of their nakedness.

Douglas Jerold calls women's arms 'The serpents that wind about a man's neck, killing his best resolutions.'

"One for his Nob."

Mr. Fields (Ticknor & Fields, the well-known Boston publishers) is known for his wonderful memory and knowledge of English literature. It is said, that when any author in the neighborhood is at a loss for any particular passage, he goes at once down to the "book store" for the desired information. One day, at a dinner party, a would be wit, thinking to puzzle Mr. Fields, and make sport for the company, announced, prior to Mr. Fields' arrival, that he had himself written some poetry, and intended to submit it to Mr. Fields as Southey's.

At the proper moment, therefore, after the guests were seated, he began, "Friend Fields, I have been a good deal exercised of late trying to find out in Southey's poems his well known lines, running thus—(repeating the lines he had composed)—can you tell us about what time he wrote them?" "I do not remember to have met with them before," replied Mr. Fields; "and there were only two periods in Southey's life when such lines could possibly have been written by him."

"When were those?" gleefully asked the witty questioner. "Somewhere," said Mr. Fields, "about that early period of his existence, when he was having the measles, and cutting his first tooth, or near the close of his life, when his brain had softened, and he had fallen into idiocy. The versification belongs to the measles period, but the expression clearly betrays the idiotic one."

The questioner smiled faintly, but the company roared.

Sensible Maxims.

Never taste an atom when you are not hungry; it is suicidal.

Never bid servants who go in pairs, as sisters, cousins, or anything else.

Never speak of your father as "the old man."

Never reply to the epithet of a drunkard, a fool, or a fellow.

Never speak contemptuously of woman-kind.

Never abuse one who was once your bosom friend, however bitter now.

Never smile at the expense of your religion or your Bible.

Never stand at the corner of a street.

Never insult poverty.

Never eat between meals.

An "old salt," who had been on a bender, had got what might be termed sublimely mystified by his frequent imbibings of "the critter." Sluivering along the street, he thought he would go to the theatre, and pass the remainder of the evening. Following some men he thought bound on the same voyage, he found himself in what he thought to be a chapel, and the minister was preaching upon the text wherein is mentioned the sleep and the goals, and in order to make an impression upon his congregation he put the significant question: "Who would wish to be a goat?" and paused, and then with still greater emphasis said: "Who will be a goat?" Our tipsy sailor could not brook the delay, and he at once responded, "As nobody else (hic) will be it, I'll be the (hic) goat rather than the play (hic) should stop."

"Old Cooper" is a Dutchman, and like many another man, of whatever nationality, has a wife that is "some." One day the old man got into trouble with a neighbor which resulted in a fight. The neighbor was getting the better of the old man, which Cooper's wife was not slow to see. The old man was resisting his enemy to the best of his ability, when his wife broke out with—

"Lie still, Cooper! he still! If he kills you, I'll sue him for damages."

It only remains to be said, that Cooper did lie still, and was not killed.

A gentleman in Alabama, in exerting himself, one day, felt a sudden pain, and fearing that his internal machinery had been thrown out of gear, sent for a negro on his plantation, who made some pretensions to medical skill, to prescribe for him. The negro having investigated the case, prepared and administered a dose to his patient with the utmost confidence of a speedy cure. No relief being experienced, however, the gentleman sent for a physician, who, on arriving, inquired of the negro what medicine he had given his master. Bob promptly responded, "Rosin and alum, sir." "What did you give them?" continued the doctor. "Why," replied Bob, "de alum to draw de parts to gettder, and de rosin to soder um." The patient eventually recovered.

There is no place in Chicago for the poor to bury their dead, and those who are unable to buy a lot in the cemeteries have been compelled to inter their deceased friends on the open prairie, or in the sand heaps along the lake shore.

A PARSON'S PREFACE.—A parson once prefaced his sermon with, "My friends, let us say a few words before we beg." This is about equal to the man who took a short nap before he went to sleep.

At a picnic, while the party were refreshing themselves over the tables, an old maid called for a strong cup of tea for a lady without milk. [She forgot where the comma was to be.]

One of our exchanges gives an account of a child being born with three tongues. Our devil wants to know if it's a girl.

If we would be happy in life, we should look upon the glad to-day as a long youth, and upon the sad to-morrow as a short old age.

Perhaps men are the most imitative animals in all the world of nature. Only one ass ever spoke like a man; and hundreds of thousands of men are daily talking like asses.

Sleep soothes and arrests the fever-pulse of the soul, and its grains are the quinine for the cold fit of hate as well as for the hot fever of love.

If we would be happy in life, we should look upon the glad to-day as a long youth, and upon the sad to-morrow as a short old age.

Strange Coincidence.

A correspondent of the Ohio State Journal gives the following anecdote of Tom Corwin, on the night he received his death stroke: "When at last the press about him lessened, I sat down by his side. What he happened first to say to me furnishes one of those strange coincidences which help us to invest our lives with the mysterious and awful, and which makes us superstitious. One of his first utterances to me was a startling description of what Tom Corwin was to be in twenty five minutes after its utterance. It was this: He said, 'You are more bald than when I saw you last the day before I sailed for Mexico.'—I said, 'Yes.'—He said, with the semi-soliloquy, semi-convulsive face which has become historical, 'But, then, Julius Caesar was bald.' I said, 'But Caesar had fits.' Then he assumed a more serious manner, and said, 'Twenty years ago, I saw a man tall in apparently unconscious paralysis, when in the midst of excited discourse. He was carried out by his friends in this condition, and his first act of consciousness was to utter the words you have just said: 'Caesar had fits.'"

In twenty five minutes after, I assisted in carrying Corwin out in the precise condition he had so strangely described.

Hints on Health.

We may venture to assert, that the principal secrets of health are early rising, exercise, personal cleanliness, and leaving the table unappressed.

When a family rises early in the morning, we conclude the house to be well governed, and the inmates industrious and healthy.

With respect to exercise, there is a simple and benevolent law of nature—"Earn, that ye may enjoy." In other words, "secure a good digestion by exercise."

As much, perhaps, may be said concerning abstinence, as exercise. "Dispel the ill humors from the pores." Cleanliness is virtue; though not the first in rank, one of the first, at least in necessity.

On the subject of temperance, "He that would eat much," says the proverb, "must eat little." Let us not confound temperance with starvation—on the contrary, it is strictly moderation. We may be intemperately abstemious, as well as intemperately luxurious.

Thousands of men live, breathe, move, pass off the stage of life—are heard of no more. Why? They do not have a particle of good in the world; none was blessed by them as the instrument of their redemption. Not a word they spoke could be recalled, and so they perished: their light went down in darkness, and they were not remembered.

Do good and leave behind you a monument of virtue that the storms of time can never destroy. Write your name in kindness, and love, and mercy, on the hearts of thousands you may come in contact with year by year. You will never be forgotten. No! your name, your deeds will be as legible on the hearts you leave behind as the stars on the brow of evening. Good deeds will shine as the stars from heaven.

"One of the driest humorists I ever met," says Sala, "Is P. T. Barnum. On board the river steamers in the States they feed you at a moderate outlay, very sumptuously, but the portions supplied are usually of microscopic dimensions. Barnum had taken passage by one of these stately Noah's Arks. He called at tea time, for a beef steak. The negro brought him the usual shriveled mite of broiled flesh, certainly not sufficient for more than two mouthfuls. Barnum poised the morsel on his fork, scanned it critically as though it were a sample of steak submitted to his inspection, then returned it to the waiter, saying, 'Yes, that's what I mean. Bring me some of it.'"

The following story is told of the Rev. Dr. Morse.—At an association dinner, a debate arose as to the use of the rod in bringing up children. The doctor took the affirmative, and the chief opponent was a young minister, whose reputation for veracity was not high. He maintained that parents often do harm to their children by unjust punishment, from not knowing the facts of the case. "Why," said he, "the only time my father whipped me, was for telling the truth." "Well," retorted the doctor, "it cured you of it, didn't it?"

A STANDARD POLITICAL WORK.

MCPHERSON'S

Political History of the Rebellion

THE Political History of the United States during the Rebellion—extending from November 6, 1860, to July 4, 1864, by HON. EDWARD MCPHERSON, Clerk of the House Representatives of the United States, is destined to become a standard authority concerning the stirring times, and is among the most useful and interesting books now before the public.

It contains the various STATE PAPERS the period—Executive, Judicial, and Legislative—and those of the Military which bear upon political questions; also the Propositions submitted to, and the Laws enacted by Congress, with the vote in each House, upon every leading question, such as Contingent, Arrest, Habeas Corpus, Consented Discontinuance, and every phrase of the Slavery Question, all the "Legal Tender," State Taxation, and all features of our Financial Legislation, with the Tables of the National and Rebel Debt; all the Military Legislation, including every Proposition and vote at the last Session respecting the Draft, and all the Propositions for the last Session in reference to the Objects of the War, and its Protraction, to Peace and Reconstruction, with the votes thereon, in both the Union and Rebel Congresses—a record, of itself worth the price of the book.

It also contains a full and fair record of the proceedings in and out of Congress, between the Presidential Election of 1860 and the breaking out of the War, including a statement of each Adjournment Proposition made, and voted upon, and all other data necessary to give a clear view of that event, in all its bearings and relations. It also contains the names of the persons composing the Union and Rebel Administrations and Congresses, with the changes therein, and such of the Rebel Legislation, Judicial Rulings, Proclamations, Orders, and Decrees, as throw light upon the progress of the war—the work forming a magazine of facts arranged in logical order, or grouped in natural harmony, and constituting a most valuable contribution to the Historical Literature of the country.

In all the votes, parties are classified. The Index is thorough, both as to names and subjects, giving the reader entire command of the contents.

C. P. BUEHLER,
GETTYSBURG, PA.

FROM innumerable recommendations, we gather the following:

Letter from Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, in 1861.

I am most happy to speak in the very highest terms of the "UNIVERSAL CLOTHES WRINGER." The hardest part of "wringing" work is in my opinion, the wringing: and the inventor of this machine may have the satisfaction of feeling that he has changed one of the most tedious parts of woman's work into a very attractive amusement. The laundress looks upon it as a great blessing. I look upon it as among the most useful articles in the house.

In consequence of the great stagnation trade in the Manufacturing districts of France and England, a large quantity of valuable Jewels, originally intended for the European market, has been sent off for sale in this country, and must be sold at any sacrifice! And, as these circumstances, HAMILTON & CO., circulating Agents of the principal European Manufacturers, have resolved upon a GREAT GIFT DISTRIBUTION:

Certificates of the various articles are first put into envelopes, sealed up, and mixed; when ordered, are taken out without regard to choice, and sent by mail, thus giving all a fair chance. Purchasers may thus obtain a Piano, Melodion, Sewing Machine, Gold watch, Diamond Ring, or any set of Jewels on our list for One Dollar.

SEND 25 CENTS FOR CERTIFICATE.

In all transactions by mail, we shall charge for forwarding the certificates, paying postage and doing the business 25 cents each, which must be enclosed when the certificate is sent for. Five certificates will be sent for $1, eleven for $2, thirty for $5, sixty-five for $10, a 100 for $15.

PHYSICIANS, PLEASE NOTICE.

We make no secret of the ingredients. Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu is composed of Buchu, Cubels and Juniper Berries, selected with great care, and prepared in accordance with H. T. Helmbold, Druggist and Chemist of sixteen years' experience in the city of Philadelphia, and which is now prescribed by the most eminent physicians, has been admitted to use in the United States Army and is also in very general use in State Hospitals and public Sanitary Institutions throughout the land.

BUCHU.

(From Dispensary of the United States.)

DIOSMA ORNATA. BUCHU LAEVIS.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive, and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish, and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.

Buchu leaves are gently stimulants, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs, producing diuresis, and like other small medicinal, exciting diaphoresis, when circumstances favor this mode of action.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostate, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections, a Dropsy.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu is used by persons from the ages 15 to 25, and from 25 to 55, or in the decline or change of life, after confinement or Labor Pains; Bed wetting in children.

Dr. R. Keyser is a Physician of over thirty years' experience, and a graduate of the Jefferson Medical College and of the University of Medicine and Surgery in Philadelphia.

MR. H. T. HELMBOLD:

Dear Sir:—In regard to the question asked me as to my opinion about Buchu, I would say that I have used and sold the article in various forms for the past thirty years. I do not think there is any form or preparation of it I have not used or known to be used, the various diseases where such medication has been indicated. You are a warmer as well as myself, that is how I can extensively employ in the various diseases of the bladder and kidneys, and the reputation I have acquired in my judgment is warranted by the facts.

I have seen and used, as before stated, every form of Buchu—the powdered leaves, the simple decoction, tincture, fluid extract—and I am not cognizant of any preparation of that plant at all equal to yours. Twelve years' experience ought, I think, to give me the right to judge of its merits, and without prejudice or partiality, I give your precedence over all others. I do not value a thing according to its bulk. If I did other Buchu would out-do yours, but I hold to the doctrine that bulk and quantity do not make up real—if they did a copper cent would be worth more than a gold dollar.

I value your Buchu for its effect on patients I have cured with it, and seen cured with it, more diseases of the bladder and kidneys than I have ever seen cured with any other Buchu, or any other proprietary compound of whatever name. Respectfully yours, &c.

GETTYSBURG: Tuesday, January 16, 1866.

We learn that there are three new stores to be opened in New Oxford in the Spring. It is quite an enterprising little town, and appears to be "looking up" in various ways.

A short time since a little lad, at Mr. Henry Lyndard's, near Abbotstown, lost his life by getting a piece of nut shell in his wind-pipe. He lingered for several days.

The Gettysburg National Bank elected the following Board of Directors on Monday the 8th instant:

An election for Managers of the Mummaburg Fire Protection Society, was held at the office of the Secretary, on Monday last, with the following result: Directors—John Hartman, Jacob Fulwider, E. V. Stahl, David Schriver, Michael Decker, J. John Mickle, Jacob H. Plank, Geo. Thomas, Michael Decker, sr., Peter Shult, Tobias Boyer, and Barnhart Myers.

A Fantastic Car.

A few days ago, at New Oxford, a freight car was run on a switch, but the brake being imperfect, the car ran through the switch across the turnpike, over a large pile of ground, down into and across a ditch, on to the track again, detaining the train but a few minutes! This reminds us of one of our youthful books of rhymes, where it is recorded of a certain individual that he jumped into a bramble bush, and scratched out both his eyes; and when he saw his eyes were out, he jumped once more into the bush, and scratched them in again.

Dr. Horner's Olein, prepared by himself, is a certain cure for chapped hands, sore lips and rough skin. A single application will impart to the skin a softness and smoothness that is really surprising. It is very cheap, and every one should have a bottle this winter. Call at his Drug Store.

The safes of the Adams Express Company, on the cars between New York and Boston, were rifled of their contents by some ingenious rogues, in the night of January 6th. The amount stolen was more than half a million of dollars! Three persons have been arrested, and about three-fourths of the money recovered.

Deaths in the Ministry.

We gather the following additional facts in regard to the death of Rev. Robert S. Gmel, who died at Emmitsburg on the 29th ult., from the Presbyterian of a late date:

"He was the oldest member of the Presbytery of Carlisle, and pastor of the churches of Tom's creek and Piney. He was pastor of these churches for more than thirty years, having celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his ministry in 1864. He had been declining in health for some time past, though his active ministry was continued to within two months of his death. He was the brother of the Rev. Dr. J. N. C. Gmel, of Brandywine Manor, Pa., and father of the Rev. Smith F. Gmel, and Rev. Lawrence Gmel, of the Presbytery of Washington. Through his long ministry he has been faithful at his post, giving constant care to his flock, and winning the respect and confidence of the community in which he dwelt for so many years. He was a true friend, an upright man, a fearless advocate of what he believed to be the truth, and a warm lover of the Church of God. His life and labors have closed, but his influence remains, and he has gone to receive the reward for which he wrought so long and well."

The same paper announces the death of Rev. Dr. D. D. Clarke, who for many years was pastor of the Lower Marsh Creek Presbyterian church in this county. It says:

"We are under the sad necessity of announcing the death of Rev. Dr. D. D. Clarke, of Meyletown, Pa. Dr. Clarke was a member of the Presbytery of Huntingdon, and at the time of his death was pastor of the church of Newton Hamilton and Waynesburg. He was the Moderator of the Synod of Philadelphia at its session at Lewisburg, Penna., in the fall of 1865, and was held in high esteem by his brethren. He was a faithful and successful pastor, a devoted man, and an earnest minister of Christ's gospel, and a constant affectionate friend. His health had been declining for some time past, and he has gone to the blessed rest of the saints of God."

The Republicans United.

Any fears that there would be a division in the Republican party have all vanished, and it now seems certain that they will act together upon all important matters. Before the holidays in the House there were eleven men considered weak, but since reassembling there were about seven; but in the last call of the yeas and nays, but one Republican voted with the Democrats, viz: Raymond, of New York, who can only be returned to the next Congress by the aid of several thousand Democrats, he having got in this time in consequence of a split in the Democratic ranks during the last canvass.

State Treasurer.

On Wednesday last, Wm. H. Kemble, State Treasurer, was re-elected for the ensuing year, by a vote of 80 to 42, the latter for J. Monroe Kreider. Mr. Kemble has been a faithful public officer, and his re-election is a deserved compliment.

The body of Abraham Lady, (formerly of this county,) who was a member of Co. Miller preaching a sermon on the occasion. His age was 40 years 7 months and 23 days. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him. Peace to his ashes!

County Treasurer.

Jacob Sheads entered upon his duties as County Treasurer on the 5th inst.

At the last meeting of the Gettysburg Beneficial Association the following officers were re-elected: President, H. J. Stahl; Vice President, Henry Rupp; Treasurer, J. B. Danner; Secretary, R. G. Harper; Loan Committee, H. D. Waller, Nicholas Codori and J. Culp.

A resolution was adopted in the U. States House of Representatives on Friday, instructing the Committee of Ways and Means to inquire into the expediency of repealing so much of the Internal Revenue law as imposes a tax on carriages valued at less than $100. Our own experience would indicate the propriety of such a measure.

A caucus of the Republican members of the House of Representatives shows that a bill establishing impartial suffrage in the District of Columbia will undoubtedly pass the House. The amendment by Mr. Hale, of New York, limiting the franchise in the future to persons who can read will be adopted.

In reply to a resolution asking the President for information as to the charges upon which Jefferson Davis is confined, and the reasons why he is not brought to trial, he sends reports from the Secretary of War and the Attorney General, the latter of which explains the legal difficulties that have prevented Davis from being promptly brought to trial. He is of the opinion that a trial for treason cannot be before a military tribunal; and that the Courts of Virginia are not yet in a state when the trial can properly take place.

The President is subjected to a great annoyance, just now, by the intrusive impertinence of certain Democratic editors throughout the country, who persist in boring him each week by the transmission of copies of their journals to his address. These poor tyros imagine that their lucubrations on national affairs will have the influence of swaying the President. Poor fellows, they are to be pitied, but if all is true we hear, the President is deserving of more pity, as in the manner indicated, he has almost been bored to death. The messenger at the White House has been directed to carry no more such journals to the President's private room.

General Grant expresses the opinion that the necessity of maintaining a large military force in the South no longer exists, and while he desires to keep there an army sufficient to quell all outbreaks that may occur, believes that a material reduction in the number of our troops can still be made with safety.

A Veteran Prisoner of War.

Among those who were exchanged at the close of the war, was Mr. John Dunning, who had been confined in various Southern prisons for 966 days, or 2 years 7 months and 19 days! His back pay was restored to him on Thursday at Washington. He must have had a dreary time in the South—and all his back pay would scarcely recompense him for his sufferings.

Six colored persons were baptized in the Susquehanna, opposite North street, Harrisburg, on Sunday afternoon week (that cold one). O dear! O dear! Notwithstanding the severity of the weather the exercises were witnessed by a large concourse of spectators.

New Jersey, for the first time in many years, has loyal and true men in the control of her Legislature. Both branches are Union Republican. When Gov. Ward is inaugurated, the political purification of a State which so long shamed her sisters by her political prostitution will be complete.

The Governors and Legislatures of Western States, in which Indian tribes now hold lands and roam as depredators, are about uniting in a petition to Congress to secure the removal and location of such tribes to territory yet unoccupied by the white men. If this is not soon done, a bloody collision between the copper and white skins must take place.

Mexican Affairs.

The President, in response to a resolution of inquiry respecting any attempt made to secure the recognition of Maximilian's Empire in Mexico, sent to the House of Representatives on Tuesday an important message, covering voluminous correspondence in relation to Mexican affairs. From this correspondence it appears that on the 17th of July last the French Minister, Count Montholon, gave to Mr. Seward a copy of a letter from Maximilian to the President of the United States, brought by a special agent; and on the 18th, Secretary Seward returned it with the answer, after consultation with the President, that the United States are now, as formerly, in friendly relations with the Republic of Mexico, and that this Government could not depart from its usual course in the matter, and therefore the reception of the letter was declined. On the 6th of December, 1865, Mr. Seward addressed a note to Count Montholon, in reply to a communication from the French Government, in which he informs it that the suggestions of the Emperor of France were reduced to a practical shape, which seems to be this: That France is willing to retire from Mexico as soon as she may, but that it would be inconvenient for her without first receiving from the U. States an assurance of a friendly and tolerant disposition to the Maximilian Government. The President is gratified at the friendly regards expressed by France, but regrets that the condition cannot be complied with. Mr. Secretary Seward explains to Count Montholon that the nature of the discontent of our people is not well understood by the French Government; that while the United States are not disposed to make a war of propaganda, it is in favor of republican Governments on this continent, and believes that the people will secure it if left to themselves.

The Army Bill.

It is understood that the bill for the organization of the permanent peace establishment of the United States army, introduced in the Senate by Senator Wilson, will be reported back to the Senate by the Military Committee, substantially without amendment, and that a bill substantially the same will be reported by the House Military Committee. The introduction of this bill; the almost certainty of its passage by Congress, and the publication of the order from the War Department, dismissing from the service one hundred and twenty-two general officers, many of them among the ablest and most efficient officers of the army, may be regarded as sure indications that the Government does not anticipate a foreign war, and it is generally supposed, will cause a still further decline in gold.

On Wednesday last, the Hon. Thomas Swann, the first Executive of Maryland elected under the new Constitution, was sworn into office at Annapolis, and entered upon the duties of his high position. He succeeds Gov. Bradford, who has filled the office in the past two years in a manner which has elicited the commendation of every one. Few men have done more for Maryland than Gov. Hicks and Gov. Bradford, and their history should be classical.

Gov. Swann sent in his message to the Legislature on Wednesday. It is an able document. He approves of the policy pursued during the war, and commends the present policy of President Johnson. He also says that England and France can still have peace, but it must be sought in the full recognition of the Monroe doctrine, and the withdrawal, sooner or later, of every vestige of monarchical rule from this Continent.

The sons of Mr. William Johnson, brother of the President, have published a letter confirming the reports that their father, who was accidentally injured by the discharge of his own gun, died for want of surgical treatment, the Rebel surgeons of the vicinity refusing to render any assistance, on the ground that Mr. Johnson was a brother of the President. The accident occurred at Velasco, Texas, and the family were obliged to send to Columbia, one hundred miles distant, for a Federal surgeon. When applied to for their professional ministrations, the medical faculty of Velasco replied that there were too many Johnsons.

A contemporary truthfully declares that conspicuous among those who are most anxious to cause a rupture with the President are men who, though Republicans, were most ready to take the same course towards Mr. Lincoln. He never did suit them, and at any time they stood ready to join in a movement against him. They were then just as good leaders, just as sound statesmen, as they are now. Experience has shown how wrong and fatal would have been their policy if adopted with reference to Mr. Lincoln, and there is no reason to suppose that should their views prevail now anything but disaster would be the result.

The standing Committees of both branches of the Legislature were announced on Wednesday last. In the Senate, Mr. Dawson, our Senator, is on the Committee on Election Districts, Agriculture, and to compare bills. In the House, our member, Mr. Hobeck, is on the Committee of Claims, to compare bills, and the Military Committee.

In the House, on Wednesday, the members, 68 to 20, voted to themselves and the Clerks a copy each of Ziegler's manual and Purdon's Digest.

The Gettysburg Railroad.

ANNUAL REPORT. The Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Gettysburg Railroad was held in this place on the 8th. The following Reports were received, and others for the ensuing year elected:

President—W. G. Case.
Managers—David Wills, Robert McCurdy, C. S. Malby, F. W. Northrop, Howard S. Case, Robert Crane, John Bachman, Wm. McConkey, Henry Kauff, Philip Small, Peter Diehl, Wm. Bittinger.

REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT.

To the Stockholders in the Gettysburg Railroad. GENTLEMEN:—The undersigned, President and Manager of the Gettysburg Railroad, begs to leave to submit the following summary Report, and for a detailed statement of the Receipts and Expenditures, (all itemized) he refers to his account filed in Court, to which he is accountable by law.

During the year a large number of crosses have been purchased and put in the Road, and the Hoovers Branch Railroad Company has been operating the Road with their motive power and employees for the last two months, at 40 cents and employees on the train. This shows that it can be operated independent of the Hoovers Road.

The Earnings for the year have been increased over that of former years, but the Expenses increased in a like proportion.

The Gross Earnings were $43,549 50
The Expenditures and outlay in crossing, and repairs of machinery and salaries, &c., were..... 25,372 98
Leaving Net Earnings..... $18,176 52

The Report is required to embrace the Receipts and Expenditures up to the 31st of December last, but the time is too short to settle up all the accounts of the agents. Hence there is a considerable amount of bills outstanding and balances in the hands of agents, and the back mail pay for the last quarter. The annexed statement gives an exhibit of the account of the Sequesterator.

All of which is respectfully submitted, &c.,
R. McCURDY, President.

Repeat of the Tax on Real Estate—A Republican Measure of Relief for the People.

It will be remembered that William H. Kemble, State Treasurer, in his last annual report, recommended to the Legislature the repeal of the tax on real estate, as a measure of relief to the people. In order to preserve political history we desire here to record the fact that Mr. Kemble is a Republican, believing strictly in Republican policy for the government of the States and the Union, and that he made the suggestion to repeal the tax on real estate in the spirit of a Republican striving for the attainment of the largest benefits to the people. Yesterday, in the Senate, Hon. Gen. Connell, one of the ablest and most influential Senators on the Republican side, offered a resolution contemplating this result—while in the House, Mann, of Potter, also an able Republican, offered a resolution instructing the Committee on Ways and Means to report a bill providing for the repeal of the tax on real estate.

It will be seen from the above facts, that the policy of the Republican party, at present and for the future, is to relieve the people of all taxation that has the appearance of being direct in its tendencies—that has the influence, like that of the tax on real estate, of bearing heavily on the laboring masses. The tax on real estate was paid by the renter and not the owner of property, notwithstanding the owner, in the spirit of the law, was the party contemplated, by the provisions thereof, to pay the tax. Its repeal, however, cannot fail to operate as a large relief to the poor man, who has heretofore been compelled to pay the largest amount of his earnings in rent, landlords alleging that the extravagance of their rents was caused by the excessive rates of taxation on real estate. Hereafter this cannot be urged, thanks to the policy and promptness of Republican financial officers and legislators.—Har. Tel. January 12.

Cattle Plague.

The Department of State at Washington, has received advices from our Consul at Liverpool to the effect that the cattle plague is still on the increase, both in England and Scotland. During the week ending December 16th the number of cases reported to him was seven and eight thousand. The disease is most alarming, and is causing the greatest anxiety and uneasiness throughout the entire Kingdom. The Consul also states that some writers contend that it is a kind of small-pox, but from his own reading, and from conversations among the people, he is inclined to believe that the malady is not well defined, and as yet no certain or fixed remedy for its cure has been discovered.

THE BEAUTIES OF GOING TO LAW.

A suit has just been terminated in Lancaster county, between two families who went to law about the ownership of an old turkey hen and her brood of young ones.—The plaintiff won the case, and got allowed two dollars for the old hen and twenty cents each for the young ones. The costs of the suit are over two hundred dollars, besides lawyers' fees. What a satisfaction lawing must be when people are so willing to pay liberally for the pleasures attending it!

Brigham Young is reported to have 185 wives, Silas Rooder 129, Jeremiah Stern 111, Job Billison 93, Julius Hoffman 92, Habene Croazzy 81, and Gideon Rulian 84. Brigham's oldest wife is not over 49, and his youngest not above 14, while he is the survivor of no fewer than 28 spouses.

The Gettysburg Railroad.

ANNUAL REPORT. The Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Gettysburg Railroad was held in this place on the 8th. The following Reports were received, and others for the ensuing year elected:

President—W. G. Case.
Managers—David Wills, Robert McCurdy, C. S. Malby, F. W. Northrop, Howard S. Case, Robert Crane, John Bachman, Wm. McConkey, Henry Kauff, Philip Small, Peter Diehl, Wm. Bittinger.

REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT.

To the Stockholders in the Gettysburg Railroad. GENTLEMEN:—The undersigned, President and Manager of the Gettysburg Railroad, begs to leave to submit the following summary Report, and for a detailed statement of the Receipts and Expenditures, (all itemized) he refers to his account filed in Court, to which he is accountable by law.

During the year a large number of crosses have been purchased and put in the Road, and the Hoovers Branch Railroad Company has been operating the Road with their motive power and employees for the last two months, at 40 cents and employees on the train. This shows that it can be operated independent of the Hoovers Road.

The Earnings for the year have been increased over that of former years, but the Expenses increased in a like proportion.

The Gross Earnings were $43,549 50
The Expenditures and outlay in crossing, and repairs of machinery and salaries, &c., were..... 25,372 98
Leaving Net Earnings..... $18,176 52

The Report is required to embrace the Receipts and Expenditures up to the 31st of December last, but the time is too short to settle up all the accounts of the agents. Hence there is a considerable amount of bills outstanding and balances in the hands of agents, and the back mail pay for the last quarter. The annexed statement gives an exhibit of the account of the Sequesterator.

All of which is respectfully submitted, &c.,
R. McCURDY, President.

Repeat of the Tax on Real Estate—A Republican Measure of Relief for the People.

It will be remembered that William H. Kemble, State Treasurer, in his last annual report, recommended to the Legislature the repeal of the tax on real estate, as a measure of relief to the people. In order to preserve political history we desire here to record the fact that Mr. Kemble is a Republican, believing strictly in Republican policy for the government of the States and the Union, and that he made the suggestion to repeal the tax on real estate in the spirit of a Republican striving for the attainment of the largest benefits to the people. Yesterday, in the Senate, Hon. Gen. Connell, one of the ablest and most influential Senators on the Republican side, offered a resolution contemplating this result—while in the House, Mann, of Potter, also an able Republican, offered a resolution instructing the Committee on Ways and Means to report a bill providing for the repeal of the tax on real estate.

It will be seen from the above facts, that the policy of the Republican party, at present and for the future, is to relieve the people of all taxation that has the appearance of being direct in its tendencies—that has the influence, like that of the tax on real estate, of bearing heavily on the laboring masses. The tax on real estate was paid by the renter and not the owner of property, notwithstanding the owner, in the spirit of the law, was the party contemplated, by the provisions thereof, to pay the tax. Its repeal, however, cannot fail to operate as a large relief to the poor man, who has heretofore been compelled to pay the largest amount of his earnings in rent, landlords alleging that the extravagance of their rents was caused by the excessive rates of taxation on real estate. Hereafter this cannot be urged, thanks to the policy and promptness of Republican financial officers and legislators.—Har. Tel. January 12.

Cattle Plague.

The Department of State at Washington, has received advices from our Consul at Liverpool to the effect that the cattle plague is still on the increase, both in England and Scotland. During the week ending December 16th the number of cases reported to him was seven and eight thousand. The disease is most alarming, and is causing the greatest anxiety and uneasiness throughout the entire Kingdom. The Consul also states that some writers contend that it is a kind of small-pox, but from his own reading, and from conversations among the people, he is inclined to believe that the malady is not well defined, and as yet no certain or fixed remedy for its cure has been discovered.

A few evenings since three burglars visited the residence of Colonel McKendry, in Milton, Mass., and attempted to enter his house. Their noise alarmed the Colonel, who seized two loaded revolvers, and, without stopping to put on his clothes, went into the yard and confronted them. They were very well-behaved burglars, and allowed themselves to be driven into a shed, where the Colonel held them at bay until his clothing had been brought to him and a rope to tie the men together, after which he marched them to the lock up.

A letter from the Chief Clerk of the United States Government Farms, St. Mary's county, Md., states that the "freedmen" there have raised during the year six thousand bushels of corn, with wheat, oats, and that in addition to six bars of tobacco and the usual amount of "truck." Out of the corn and oats raised, we have fed our teams and cattle, consisting of eighty two horses and eighteen oxen. There has been a large amount of hay secured in addition to the corn fodder, and the farms present a marked contrast, showing the difference between compensated labor and slavery.

THE PENNSYLVANIA SHAD CONVENTION.—The State Fish Convention convened at Harrisburg on Wednesday. Every county on the Susquehanna and its tributaries was represented. Hon. Simon Cameron presided. Resolutions asking the Legislature to pass a bill compelling the owners of dams in the Susquehanna and its principal tributaries to alter them by step way sluices, so as to permit the free passage of shad and other fish, and thus restore what was formerly a leading interest in the State, were adopted.

Blown Up.

Two Men Killed.—The Lock Haven Republican says: A locomotive running up from Kingston on Sunday afternoon, exploded while between the river and Pittston station, killing two men, the engineer and fireman. The engine was blown to atoms, and the bodies of the unfortunate men could not be recognized. The pipes were frozen it is supposed.
